

food system change
online congress

Online Direct Marketing

Direct marketing refers to the sale of self-produced agricultural products. With online direct marketing, customers can order food at a producer's online shop and have it delivered.

- new sales opportunities for producers, especially for otherwise unmarketable products
- higher profit margins
- works with narrow product ranges (in contrast to farm shops)
- high transparency enables sustainability-oriented customers to make informed decisions sustainability potential

